French Use Furniture to Kill Their Foes.

BOTH SIDES WERE TRAPPED

Germans Putted Through Riddled Coil ings and Clubbed by Invaders-One Frenchman Was Armed With a Leg of a Statue of Venue-Machine Guns

Of all the tragic, intense minor chgagements of the war, that of the light by which the French captured the Chatour of Vermelles, at the end of fifty days' buttling for possession of the town, is most thrilling. The corres-pondent of the London Post at the Pritish headquarters in Franco tells of the light as follows; "The story of the struggle may seem incredible to those who have taken no part in this style of fighting. After several futile attempts at a direct advance the French commenced to carry a mine indernenth the chateau, but it exploded just outside. An immense cavern gravned in front of them, and the bother of Germana were thing in all directions. All that was to be seen of the enemy was the shapeless mass of what had been a man half driven through a garden wall."

"Machine gumers in the chateau, with that happy fulfiference to every annibugged windows, determined to kill friend and for together. The utmost depression, however, which could be given their guns only enabled them to hit odd corners of the trenches, but ing to and fro that awful scythe of seed and, like Death himself, were furious at bring outwitted.

Germana Hold Two Floors

"The garrison of the chateau, irritated by the impotence of their machine gans, were drugging a couple of the gans out to play from the sandbugged perch. The Germans were maware of twenty-five or thirty Frenchmen who had gained the shelter of the house walls. These, as the door of the cha-teau, which burred their hopes, so unexpectedly opened, leaped with a joy one yell upon the emerging Germans, who, encumbered by gains, tripods and belis, gave way before the ensuinght and althor were bayenesed or that or esemped to the first story of the

The most celebrated whispering galbry is that which surrounds the base of the interior of the dome of St. Paul's cathedral, London. A person speaking near its surface can be heard distinctly by one listening near the smooth wall at the other extremity of the diameter, but not elsewhere. In the cathedral of Gloncester a whispering passage leads from one nisle to the apposite behind the east window of the choir. It is seventy-live feet long, six and a half feet high and three feet while in the form of bull an irregular octagon. The walls and cellings are of freestone, and the slightest whisper travels from end to end.

The eathedral of the Taj Mabal in Agra, India, has most marvelous ech-oes and reverberating qualities, but is searcely a whispering gallery. The whole cathedral of Girgenti, in Sleffy, bus this character owing to the pecul-har structure of its walls. These re-markable properties also belonged to the "Eur of Dionysius," cut in the rock at Syracuse in the shape of a parabolic curve, ending in an elliptical arch. It is said that the tyrant seated in a small chamber over a hundred feet from the spot occupied by his captives by this means could hear every word spoken by his prisoners.—London Answers.

If Animals Could Speak. It is a startling fact that if some animals could tell their life history they would be able to recall events which happened hundreds of years ago. A linssian eagle, for instance, would be able to remember watching with greedy eyes as one by one the French soldiers under Napoleon fell exhausted out of the ranks in their awful retrent from Moscow in 1812. There are croe-odlies allye in India today which saw the first English traveler set foot there. while there are wholes in the sea which may have akirted the coast of France when it was invaded in 1415. A grea many elephants could recall historical events of a hundred years ago, while there are ravens still living whose memory could go back twice that period.-London Answers.

The visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon was probably about the middle of his reign. She came, it is supposed, a journey of 1,500 miles, with quite a large retinue of servants and camels and with valuable presents of gold and Arabian perfumes. Our lesson gives the queen's own statement of her object in coming to see King Solomon, and of how she found the facts to be more than double all the stories told respecting King Solomon's

For people to travel a long distance merely to know about the wisdom of God such as King Solomon possessed, would imply that if it were known that a still wiser One could be conferred with, He would he sought; and if it should be known that this wiser One was helr to the world and was seeking a Bride, how many might be expected to hasten to lim and accept the generous proposal This is exactly the condition of things. THINGS ALL OUGHT TO KNOW

As Christian Bible Students-The Satisfactory Proof of "Why God Permits One of the questions which comes to nearly every thinking mind today is, "Why does God permit evil?" As we look about us in the world we observe that it is filled with sorrow and trouble sickness and pain and every trial we could enumerate, and we cannot help wondering WHY GOD ALLOWS IT. We realize that He is almighty and that He could prevent it if He wished. We read in His Word that He is more willing to do for His children than are earthly parents for theirs, and we know how much that means; yet of tentimes it seems that those who try to do and live right have the most trouble. This question is made very clear in a book entitled, "The Divine Plan of the Ages." Every statement is backed by Scripture, and shows that This and many other subjects of deep interest to all of God's people are dis-

So, to please the old woman, he promised to ask for Donald, and he conscientionsly kept his word. At various ports he made inquiry among British ships, although it seemed very much like looking for a needle in a bale of hay. But it is the unexpected that happens. As Dr. Macleod's steamer went up the Hugh river an outward bound vessel passed close by. A sallor was leaning over her bulwark, and moved by a sudden impulse, the doctor shouted out: "Are you Donald Mactavish?" To his intense surprise the man an-

wered, "Yes." Dr. Macleod had only time to shout, 'You're to write to your mother!" us the vessels drew apart. The result of his amuzing meeting was that the old lady received a penitent letter from ther long neglectful son.
